Ale is not another name for beer.

(It's brewed with a twist.)

We brew Ale that way on purpose. We use different ingredients. A different recipe. For a very different flavour. Would we like you to switch from beer to Ale? Certainly not. (We brew some pretty fine beers, too.) There's room in your fridge for both-and a time for each. Which times are Ale times for you? No one can say for sure. But think of the fun you'll have finding out.

Station Pares Staff

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver radio station CJOR announced Monday it is laying off lie of its staff of 41 as part of an extensive economy wave made necessary by drastic losses suffered as a result of a recommendation by the Board of Broadcast Governors.

President Mrs. Marie Chandler said the losses are a direct result of a BBG recommendation that the station's licence be lifted after Oct. 31.

Last April the board recommended against renewing the licence of the station that got into hot water with the board because of an open line program.

The Stage Is Set

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS Minister Can has found a generally favorable reception exceentatives of the municipalities and unorga entatives of the municipalities and unorganized of the capital region for his proposals on the ming of a joint services board. This bids fair a stablishment of such a board possibly before ar is out, which, if it becomes a reality, will ceremable more to be done for the common benefit region than could be accomplished by the com-ere are still hazards ahead for the plan, to be to the least of them created by the "opting out" in of the legislation which would permit parts egion, by plebiscite, to decline to participate in functions of the board.

For a start according to the minister's recommattions Scoke would have no part of the sewerage ady which would become part of the board's purview, at this is reasonable because of Scoke's isolation from metropolitan district. But it is not nearly soasconable nor fair that both Scoke and Esquimalt ould not participate either in the regional parks sysm. Is it not to be anticipated that the system would stend west as well as north? Would Esquimalt people of use the regional parks paid for by the rest of the community? Of course they would.

This is perhans only a small and unimportant in-

This is perhaps only a small and unimportant in-itial flaw, but it illustrates the possibility of one of the major components or several of the minor ones render-ing the whole plan distinctly inequitable and thus

Fortunately, however, at this point there seems to no likelihood that such will be the case, the munical leaders appearing convinced of the value of an incument that will permit regional services to be hand and regional problems to be met in united thion but with serious or hurtful loss of local

The fields of endeavor allotted to the board for a start are limited, consisting of community planning, the sewer study, the regional parks and control of the ale and use of fireworks. But the expectation is that to eliminate the present multiplicity of intermunicipal coards such other joint services as water and public tealth will in due time be added.

Thus the stage is set for the individual components of the region to work together (and pay together) in a well organized, economical and effective vay wherever their interests extend beyond their own boundaries. The voice of parochialism has been and will be raised in opposition, but with leadership of the ort so far in evidence there are grounds for believing that good sense will prevail, and that "opting out" f a fair share of responsibility for the region's well-eing will not be a popular notion.

Time for Patience

result in bloodshed.

If Britain had decided to bend to the demands of colony's neighboring African nationalist government and take such punitive action the Rhodesian and take such punitive action the Rhodesian

This, of course, would result in a war which would both politically and militarily impracticable for

To avoid this, Britain has wisely chosen—backed the more senior and mature Commonwealth gov-ments—to continue to pursue its present course of versations with the Rhodesian government.

Whether or not these negotiations will eventually ove fruitful cannot by any means be guaranteed this time. However, if they are to meet with any ecces at all it will only be brought about by both the determining to conduct them with patience and derstanding with a minimum of outside interference.

Price of Freedom

THE IDEA of compensating persons who have spent time in jail and are subsequently found not guilty the charge upon which they were arrested is not w. Most authorities agree this is a highly desirable

It has been discussed in the British House of mmons, along with the suggestion that the state ould compensate persons who have suffered loss rough criminal action.

It was suggested, for example, that a man who ad had his watch stolen, and was without insurance, hould be paid damages by the state—the inference, parently, being that the state had not given him dequate protection.

This is perhaps a little too extreme.
But the compensating of a man improperly imposed is a very different matter. There have been stances of what are known as ex gratiae payments innocent persons who have been incarcerated. But he machinery is unwieldy and complicated, and the syment can be made only by act of Parliament or der in-council.

Mr. Jack Roxburgh, MP for Norfolk, a Liberal, roposes to introduce to Canada's Parliament a bill reviding for compensation of persons improperly imprisoned. The obvious question arises: How does uthority measure the price of a man's freedom?

There are other considerations. Supposing a man acquitted on any particular charge, and has paid lawyer to defend him, does he then have a claim gainst the state for legal fees? Why not? In a civil ction the costs are borne by the loser.

MR. DOUGLAS: In the first place one questions South Viet Nam as being a sovereign power. From the very beginning it has been a puppet government supported militarily and financially by the United States, and to say that the United States was invited in by South Viet Nam is like saying that Edgar Bergen was invited to dinner by Charlie McCarthy.

For Victoria Shamrocks, the second half of the Inter-City Lacrosse League schedule is starting out much the same as the first.

All the news is bad.

In trying to come up with a lineup to face New Westminster here Wednesday night, coach Jim McNeill got the following reports:

Reg Fcster's ankle injury will probably keep him out at least one more game.

Jack Showers, the defenceman Shamrocks need so desperately, will be absent for two weeks. He has a pinched nerve.

Bill Munroe, who fractured a toe in practice but Bill Munroe, who fractured a toe in practice but played Saturday in Coquitlam, is hobbling badly. He's a doubtful. doubtful.

And finally, junior star Ranjit Dillon, who would normally be called up as a replacement, was hurt in Sunday's junior game and may not be ready in time.

Shamrocks trail third-place Coquitiam by two points, and must finish third to make the playoffs.

BOXLA BRIEFS: Vancouver also has injury problems with both Pete Black (broken ankle) and Bill Chisholm (shoulder separation) probably through for the season . . . Coquitlam is approaching both Jack Blonda and former all-star Tom MeVie, trying to get one or both to sign up in time for playoffs. They need play only three games to be eligible.

AT THE 19th With Harry Young

Twenty-year-old Wayne Vollmar struck another of the younger school of golf when he came from id to win the B.C. amateur championship on

While Vollmer should strengthen the Willingdon Cupm, it is a little disappointing that the selectors did not a step further and introduce some more young blood, of to win the event this year at least to build up a team
t will do the trick in the near future.

Such, of course, would involve a change of BCGA policy Willingdon Cup selection is to go along with those yers who have the best current performances.

On those grounds John Johnston, John Russell and Bert thurst curred their places—although the last named must e got in by the skin of his teeth. All three, however, e in last year's team which finished a poor fourth at areast to winning selectors' approval. He is one of the two ternates.

Terry, like Wayne Vollmer, is a former Canadian junior ampion, and at Point Grey last week he reached the semilal before bowing out to Russell.

The other alternate, Frank Head, is comparatively unsown outside of Vancouver club circles. A long-hitting 30ar-old from Marine Drive, he has recorded good scores this year's medal events in the Mainland city.

Ricky Kent lost his chance of making it this year beuse he failed to steer clear of trouble in the four qualifygrounds and had a number of bad holes in among a lot pretty good golf, but the Victoria champion and Jim Seed, it year's Canadian junior champion, are probably among one in which B.C.'s future hopes of regaining Willingdon up supremacy will eventually lie.

This year's Willingdon Cup and Canadian Amateur ampionship will be played at the Pine Ridge club in Winnigon Aug, 9-14 following the Americas Cup games on the ighboring St. Charles Country Club on Aug. 6-7.

In the latter event, two B.C. golfers, Johnston and cehurst are members of the Canadian team.

The Uplands Golf Club will be handed over the Willie Driver and the prizes that go along with winning of ther-Club-League at a function at the Gorge Vale Golf

It is Upland's third win in succession in this popular vent, and it gives them a lead over all their opponents as in most frequent winners. Gorge Vale has held it twice, and Victoria and Royal Colwood once each.

The "prehistoric" club which goes to the club finishing the foot will this year be presented to Gorge Vale, a club hich hitherto has never finished out of the first two.

The junior inter-city match between Victoria and Vanver has been postponed again.

The Vancouver team will not be selected until after B.C. junior championship at Marine Drive, July 5-7.

Les Mine, B.C. junior development chairman says that dates in July are under consideration. The Victoria home will be played at Royal Colwood.

Moke Morgan and Claire Mitchell retained the city or buttons by beating Jack Brown and Ray Spouse, all lorge Vale, at the 13th hole at Gorge Vale. Next oppo-s at Uplands are Bill Kane and Jim Douglas of Uplands.

Bob is "very optimistic" about the success of the equipment but cautious about its value in saving dollars.

He said it takes two or three days to find a smoldering fire after a lightning storm but it the new equipment can localize a storm, "we should be able to cut this time down considerably."

Long Range

The equipment will be invaluable in the northern 40 per cent of the province not covered by primary lookout towers because of inaccessibility.

Bob anticipates the lightning hunter may have an over-all range of 500 miles, enabling about seven units to cover the entire province.

Each unit will cost between $2,000 and $3,000 and if this summer's tests are satisfactory, it is hoped to have several in operation by next spring.

Dear Ann Landers: What earn a mother say to a 23-year-old son who refuses to accept responsibility for himself? When I tell him he is behaving like a juvenile he says "It's your fault, you raised me."

I raised him all right. His father gave me no help whatever—and it shows. When the boy was in school I was the one who kept prodding him to do his chores and his homework. He used to hide behind his father and whine, "Make her leave me alone." My husband would turn to me and say, "Ruth, why don't you quit nagging the boy?"

Garden Notes

Keep Them Going

Earlier this spring I wrote a series of articles on summer bedding plants and how to use them effectively to enhance the appearance of the en hance the appearance of the garden.

Now that these plants have taken hold and are growing away nicely, our next problem is how to keep them in bloom over the whole summer, for many of our most colorful annuals are inclined to "go for broke"—to shoot the works on one brief but glorious splash of color, then stage a sit-down strike for the rest of the season. These plants must be taken in hand and kindly but firmly taught the virtues of staying on the job.

The condition of the soil is very important here. The garden books seem to assume that everyone does his gardening on a rich but friable loam soil when, in fact, most of us must make do with a far from perfect soil texture. Much of the soil hereshouts contains a high proportion of clay and such a soil, after cultivating and watering, tends to form a crust on the surface. This crust, as it bakes and cracks in the sun, seals off the air supply to the roots, while water runs off rather than sinking in. It is a common thing for plants growing in crusted soil to lose their lower leaves and stop blooming. * * *

The trick here is to break up the crust—to stir and loosen, the soil.

around and between the plants. In a big bed and with wide spacing between the plants, this work can be done standing up with the Dutch hoe or one of its modern substitutes. In smaller and more closely planted beds, there is nothing for it but to get down on your hunkers and stir the soil with a hand fork whenever you see signs of caking and crusting.

With bare soil, this is a neverending job, for every time it rains or you apply water with a hose, the well-worked surface soil runs together again to form that infuriating crust. This can be prevented quite simply by spreading a one-inch layer of peat moss on the surface between the plants.

By shading and insulating the soil surface from the sun, no caking or cracking can occur, and at the same time, the roots of your plants remain cool and moist.

cool and moist.

* * * *

The brown of the peat moss surface mulch looks most attractive on the beds, providing a pleasing background for the green of the leaves and the color of the flowers. After serving its purpose as an insulating mulch all summer, the peat can be dug in during the fall clean-up, where it will make a vast improvement in it will make a vast improvement the texture of the soil in the bed.

Never allow any of your bedding plants to go to seed, for this is a sure way to shorten the life of your floral display. Someone in the family should be assigned the job of deadheading the flowers—of making the rounds once a week snipping off all faded blooms.

With snapdragons, the first flush of bloom will probably be over by the middle of July. Cut down the faded spike at that time, and the secondary spikes will develop promptly to put on a second show of color in your carrier.

on a second show of color in your garden.
With violas and pansles, the initial flowering shoots will be pretty well pooped by the end of July, but there should be plenty of vigorous new shoots pushing outward from the centre of the plant. These can put en a grand late show if the old, flowered-out stalks are cut away and a little rich top dressing tucked in around the spread of the foliage.

the spread of the foliage.

Verbena and phlox drummondi are peculiar critters in that they can't seem to make up their minds whether they want to be upright plants or trailers. They will often start to straggle rather badly in midsummer, and rather than cut them back, your best bet is to take advantage of this straggling habit.

Arrange the straggling shoots over the surface of the bed and peg them down, using bits of wire bent into oversize "hairpins" to hold them in contact with the soil. Treated in this way, the trailing shoots will take root here and there along their length, and will push up enough flowering side shoots to keep the bed colorful well on into the fall.

SHEILAH GRAHAM Visits Grubby Pad

Chaplin Needs Bath

LONDON (NANA)—Nineteen-year-old Michael Chaplin has writen a book titled, I Couldn't Smoke the Grass on my Father's Lawn. Father is Charlie Chaplin whom Michael has not seen for the past three years.

"Our worlds are different," said Michael with exquisite understatement. "When he comes to London, he stays at the Savoy Hotel. I could hardly visit him like this now could I? They'd throw me out." They would.

I paid a visit to young Chaplin in his $10-a-week apartment on the top floor of a row of drab houses in North London. I was appalled by the poverty and squalor. The winding wooden steps to the two rooms Chaplin and his exectress wife Patricia with their ten-month-old baby Christian, call home, needed cleaning.

The room in which they live—the other room is leased to a friend and his wife was bare except for a soiled mattress in the middle of the room, a pile of dirty laundry in the corner, a rickety chair in which I sank after the long stair climb, a wine bottle which they both use for cigarette ash and a brand new television set. In a windowed closet the baby slept peacefully. red closet the baby slept peacefully.

But the greatest shock for me was Chaplin himself. His black, shoulder-length hair was parted in the middle, falling on each side of his nose beyond his bearded chin. When the curtain of hair parted I was surprised by the sensitivity in his attractive hazel eyes.

It is impossible for me to describe his clothes, except that they, Chaplin, hair and all, would have benefitted by a heavy dunking in a suds-filled, man-size washing machine.

"Is your book about your father?" I asked Michael.
"Partly," he replied. "How do you treat him?" "I'm objective. I've admired his work, but he is a terrifying man.
Very stern and very opinionated. The book is also about my childhood and my life in London. We came to Europe from Hollywood when I was six.

'I write of the people I met in my father's big, beautiful chalet in Switzerland, people like Neel Coward Graham Greene, of my sisters and brothers—we are a large family, there were two nurses, lots of servants and governesses for the eight children.

"Whether my wife and I have a large family depends on our finances. I've earned some money as an actor—I play a Greenwich Village beatnik in Promise Her Anything with Leslie Caron and Warren Beatty. It's not a big part—seven lines—but I worked for a week.

"I'm now getting together my singing act for the "I'm now getting together my singing act for the Alhambra in Paris and I have been asked to make a four-week tour of the States for the press department of Promise Her Anything."

"Promise me one thing," I said weakly, "that you won't change your hair style or clothes. I think America should get the full impact of what can happen when a boy rebels against his parents.

"Why did you choose this way of life?" I asked Michael, who is a pleasant, gentle person. "It was not a choice between luxury and poverty, I had no choice. If you want to lead your own life you've got to pay for it.

"I was hopeless at school in Switzerland. I couldn't take it. So I just took off. I left home because it was impossible for me to stay. As long as I wasted to study. impossible for me to stay. As long as I wanted to study, my family financed me. But they cut me off completely when I didn't. At first when I went to the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts here to learn acting, they paid for the fees. And I want to put this straight. My parents did not object to my being an actor, it was only that I did not finish my education."

Was he looking forward to returning to the land of his birth? "Very much. My sister Geraldine has been there several times since we came to live in Europe. She likes it very much as I am sure I will. But I've grown to love London. You can be anonymous here. It doesn't matter what you do or wear, no one takes any notice. I imagine this is not possible in the States." I imagine this is not possible in the States."

It should be interesting for him to find out.

Too Much for Court A bad storm June 12-13 damiaged the foremast and stopped the engines. Occhran fixed the mast but soon after complained of pains in his legs which later spread to his chest, arms and head, the girls said.

ROME (AP) — A Rome court has sentenced Italian movie director Renato Castellani, a movie producer and eight cinema hall managers to a suspended two-month term in prison on a charge of making and showing an obscene film.

The trial grew out of a charge by a spectator in Turin against Castellani's motion picture controsesso (Counter-sex).

The accusation related to an episode in the film dealing with a love affair between a music teacher, played by Italian actor Nino Manfredi, and a business lic performance.

FEVER RISES

The actor took to his cabin and his fever began to rise. The girls quoted Cochran as saying: "Please don't leave me alone," and at another time, "God, what will happen to you if I should die!"

He instructed them on how to steer the sloop and told them: "One of you must always be at the helm."

spades is "impossible" because the defenders

In theory, four spades is "impossible" because the defenders can start off with two heart tricks and must also get two trumps. But the defense isn't bound to lead hearts—unless you sky-write the situation by helpfully bidding the other three suits. The fact that North-South were playing the Schenken sytem enables them to reach game via a very unrevealing route, since of South's failure to open the Big Club (17 points minimum) told North there could be no slam. Playing "standard," North might well have responded two clubs since partner could have as many as 23 points. And over two clubs, South's natural rebid is two diamonds, so that when eventually four spades is reached, West task was not as easy as it appeared, for a far-sighted safety precaution was needed to stop the defence from promoting an extra trump trick. How do you play after winning the diamond opening and cashing three rounds of clubs, pitching a heart from the South hand?

If, after the third club, you lead a trump from dummy, you can be beaten, East's ace wins and after he has cashed the heart ace, his club return allows west to make the trump king-ten in back of your queen-jack. (Needless to say, if declarer ruffs with an honor, West refuses to overruff; he sluffs a loser and waits to collect two trump tricks.)

The solution? After he cashes three clubs, declarer plays dummy's last club and throws his last heart. Tossing loser on loser kills any chance of a trump promotion for the defenders, who can win only two trumps in addition to the fourth round of clubs.

TO TAKE LOOK

In the commons, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker asked Mr.
Martin whether the acting prime minister could confirm newspaper stories Chief Justice Dorion's report would be made available at 4 p.m. EDT Tuesday.

AFTER RECESS

Did that mean it wouldn't be tabled in the Commons until after a summer recess due to start about Wednesday, Mr.
Diefenbaker asked.

Mr. Martin said there was no basis for the suggestion it wouldn't be tabled before the recess.

TO TAKE LOOK

Mr. Pearson said he was happy the report, dealing with charges of attempted bribery and influence peddling against the deral ministerial aides, was waiting for him on his return.
After a preliminary 10 ok through it, he said he would discuss the report at a cabinet meeting called for 10 a.m. today. He did not know when it would be tabled.

ARRIVED EARLIER

The report by Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of Quebec Superior Court was handed to Acting Prime Minister Paul
Martin almost four hours before Mr. Pearson's return.

Pearson hears news from Martin

To Be Tabled

Report In By Dorion

Did that mean it wouldn't be tabled in the Commons until after a summer recess due to start about Wednesday, Mr. Diefenbaker asked.

Mr. Martin said there was no basis for the suggestion it wouldn't be tabled before the recess.

meeting called for 10 a.m. to-day. He did not know when it would be tabled.

ARRIVED EARLIER

The report by Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of Quebec Superior Court was handed to Acting Prime Minister Paul Martin almost four hours before Mr. Pearson's return.
